PROPOSALS,
By BIOREN & MADAN,
For publishing by Subscription, that celebrated Work,
Godwin's Political Justice.
From the last London Edition.
TERMS:
I. It will be published in two large volumes, duodecimo.
II. Price to Subscribers, two dollars, handsomely bound, to be paid on delivery of the work.
III. As soon as a number of Subscribers appear, sufficient to defray the expence, it shall be put to press.
IV. The names of the Subscribers shall be prefixed.
The following Character of this work is extracted from the Monthly Review, p. 311, 312, for March, 1793.
"We have no small degree of pleasure in announcing the present work to our readers; as one which from the freedom of its enquiry, the grandeur of its views, and the fortitude of its principles, is eminently deserving of attention. By this eulogium, we would by no means be understood to subscribe to all the principles which these volumes contain. Knowledge is not yet arrived at that degree of certainty which is requisite, for any two men to think alike on all subjects; neither has language attained that consistent accuracy, which can enable them to convey their thoughts, even when they do think alike, in a manner perfectly correct and intelligible to both. These difficulties are only to be overcome by a patient, incessant, and benevolent investigation.
"Many of the opinions which this work contains, are bold; some of them are novel; and some doubtless are erroneous:—but that which ought to endear it even to those whose principles it may offend, is the strength of argument adduced in it to prove, that peace and order most effectually promote the happiness after which political reformers are panting;—that as the progress of knowledge is gradual, political reform ought not to be precipitate;—and that convulsive violence is dangerous not only to individuals (for that result comparatively would be of small account) but to the general cause of truth. It is the opposite of this principle that inspires the enemies of political enquiry with so much terror; it is the supposition that change must inevitably be attended by the turbulence and injustice of commotion; and that innovation cannot be made without the intervention of evils more destructive than those which are intended to be reformed. Under the conviction of this philanthropic sentiment, of calm and gradual reform, (which in its proper place he has fully illustrated) Mr. GODWIN proceeds without scruple first to enquire into present evil, through its essential branches, and next to demonstrate future good.
"Dividing his work into eight books, and making THE IMPORTANCE OF POLITICAL INSTITUTIONS the subject of the first, he begins by an attempt to prove the omnipotence of government over the moral habits of mankind; and that on these moral habits their wisdom, virtue and felicity depend."
☞ Subscriptions received by the publishers at their Printing Office, back of No. 77 Dock-street, Philadelphia.

FOR THE GAZETTE OF THE UNITED STATES.

Mr. Fenno,

The power of pardoning is vested in the Governor of Pennsylvania in the same ample and extensive manner, as in England, it is exercised by the king of Great-Britain. The ninth section of the Constitution, on the powers of the Executive Magistrate, enables the Governor "to remit fines and forfeitures, and grant reprieves and pardons, except in cases of impeachment." The latter part of this clause has indeed introduced a difference, where an impeachment takes place by the popular branch of government; for, it has been generally supposed in England, though a pardon cannot be pleaded in bar or hindrance of an impeachment, tha the king may pardon the sentence. In Pennsylvania, by the express letter of the constitution, the law is otherwise. But with respect to Courts of Justice, the English prerogative has not lodged greater powers in the king, on the subject of pardoning crimes, and remitting fines and forfeitures, than the constitution has lodged in the Governor of Pennsylvania.

If we are warranted in this position; and any doubts should arise touching the power of the Governor, to dispense with the penalty in any instance; an appeal to the law would be highly proper for a solution of the question. Let it be supposed, for example, we were desirous of deciding the point "in what cases the Governor may release or discharge a recognizance"; I apprehend we shall find, both on principle and authority, that it may be legally done, in all cases, except where it is taken at the request, and upon the complaint of the party.

The restriction on prerogative mentioned by Braxton—"non posterit Rex Gratiam facere cum Injuria et Damno aliorum; quod antem alienum est, dare non potest per suam Gratiam"—is consonant to the soundest principles of reason and justice. But the difficulty lies in discerning the true extent and application of the remark.

It is admitted as a general rule, that where an interest is vested in the party, as in the case of bringing a popular or qui tam action, the Executive cannot release the penalty, or pardon the defendant; because, quod alienum est, dare non potest per suam gratiam. Upon a similar ground, it is understood, a penalty once actually vested, by Conviction, in the party grieved, cannot be discharged. But, it is not so easy to point out the degree, or kind of interest, which thus limits the exercise of the executive authority. We shall however attempt to draw the line, and examine the question, both on principle and authority.

The great distinction on the subject appears to be this—Where surety for the peace is taken by a magistrate ex officio, or is ordered by a Court, as part of the sentence, the recognizances in these cases, may be discharged even before forfeitures. But where a recognizance is taken at the request and upon the complaint of the party, it is otherwise.

It is acknowleged on all hands, that any recognizance may be released after it is broken, and the debt thereby absolutely vested in the commonwealth.—In which case we may observe, the prosecutor is as deeply interested in the business as he was before the forfeiture, in as much as compelling the wrongdoer to make satisfaction by the actual payment of the forfeiture to the public, is the only means of affording him that protection, which he seeks by an appeal to the laws of his country.

If a recognizance be taken upon the complaint of the party, it is certain, in this case, that before the condition broken, the executive cannot discharge it; because the party has an interest in it—his personal safety depends upon it. But if the offender should forfeit his recognizance by an actual assault upon the prosecutor, the debt may then be released, tho' it is evident, the prosecutor has become more deeply interested in the business than he was before the breach of the condition. The true reason therefore why a release will not discharge a recognizance, is not the prosecutor's having an interest in the event, but his being a party to the original transaction, and that the debt in the first instance was created at his request, and for his sole use and personal safety; for, the moment a forfeiture is incurred, the nature of the debt is changed—it becomes wholly vested in the public, and the executive may dispose of it, as he thinks proper, however interested the prosecutor may be in the payment of the penalty.

In all cases where a recognizance is taken without the complaint of the party, it is a debt created without his act or interference; and in such case, he can no more be said to have an interest in it, than where a fine is imposed by the court without his consent, which there is no doubt the executive may remit. Before bringing a qui tam action, the violation of the law may be pardoned—it is the actual commencement of the suit that vests an interest in the informer, which cannot be released. Upon the same principle there must be the act of the party applying for surety, to vest a similar interest in him. It is worthy of remark here, that the books which treat on this subject, uniformly mention the cases of the informer and the recognizance together, to illustrate the position, "that the king cannot discharge an interest vested in the subject;" which furnishes a pretty strong presumption, that it is the act of the party that vests the interest in both cases—in the one by bringing the suit—in the other, by making the complaint.

It is true, it is laid down in the books, in general terms, "that the king cannot pardon a recognizance for the peace before it is forfeited." But this should be understood of recognizances, taken in the usual and general course of business; which every body knows, is on the complaint of a particular person to keep the peace towards him. And tho' it be the practice in such case, to insert in the recognizance, "and towards all other persons;" yet it is by no means a necessary part of the recognizance. Sir Edward Coke seems to insinuate a distinction, where the recognizance is to keep the peace towards another by name; and observes that in such case, the king cannot discharge it before the peace is broken. As recognizances to keep the peace, are generally taken on the complaint of an individual for the explicit purpose of protecting him by name in the recognizance; we cannot avoid thinking the passage should be understood as corroborating the idea now contended for.

If the executive hath power to pardon the foundation, it seems reasonable to assert, that he can pardon every thing depending thereon, or proceeding from it. When surety for keeping the peace is deemed by the court necessary for the preservation of good order, it must be considered as the effect, or consequence of the criminal conduct of the party; and therefore within the reach of the pardoning power, equally with the crime, of which he is convicted.

To say the executive can pardon one part of the sentence only, is a doctrine perfectly novel, and is a limitation on the pardoning power, not to be found in the books, unless in some special cases, particularly on acts of parliament—and the doctrine, in the present instance might lead to very serious consequences.

It is a fact as notorious, as it is melancholy, that the most usual objects of the criminal jurisdiction of courts, are the poor and friendless, who have generally made themselves so by their vices. To require persons of this description to give surety to keep the peace, is to require impossibilities. If courts therefore were to adopt the practice of ordering criminals convict, to procure bail for their good behaviour and keeping the peace, the pardoning power might be extremely impaired, as the miserable wretches would still be kept in custody for want of sureties.

With respect to releasing a recognizance taken by a magistrate ex officio, or that has been ordered by a court as part of the sentence, the legal effect of such discharge, agreeably to the principles here stated, must be, to prevent an arrest and demand of sureties for the same cause; just as a pardon will operate in other cases. And as the courts do not require surety from offenders, without good reasons, which commonly occur in the course of the trial, the prudence of the executive will naturally suggest the propriety, of not rashly releasing recognizances for the preservation of the peace and order of society, even in those cases, where he may think proper to pardon the rest of the sentence.

In support of the preceding observations, we shall refer to two authorities; the one extracted from an abridgment, to which more weight is due, than to any other compilation of the like nature—the other, from the very oracle of the law.

"After a recognizance is forfeited, the king may pardon the forfeiture; but he cannot release the condition before it is broken; because the party at whose complaint it was taken, has an interest in the condition."*

The statute Westmr, 2. chap. 20. was made to prevent trespasses in parks and fish ponds—and in case of recovery in an action founded upon the statute, the trespasser is not only to pay heavy damages, but to suffer three years imprisonment—and at the expiration of the imprisonment, is to make ransom to the king, to find sureties that he will not afterwards commit the like offence, and for want of such sureties, he is to abjure the realm.

Even in a civil action, founded upon this statute, the king may not only remit the fine, but by pardon, discharge the defendant, from that part of the judgment, that requires him to give sureties, or to abjure the realm.†

ADDRESS.

The Volumes of this Gazette are made up half-yearly—the preſent Number commences the Tenth, which will be completed on the laſt of December next.

Two years and an half have elapſed ſince the Gazette of the United States was publiſhed daily. The patronage it has received, is equal, it is believed, to that of any other daily publication, for the ſame period, and merits the Editor's grateful acknowledgements. Subſcribers are continually added to the liſt; and its advertiſing patrons encreaſe; they will pleaſe to accept of ſincere thanks for their liberality.

A full ſupply of new Types is hourly expected—When received, the Gazette ſhall appear in a new dreſs.

As it is the determination of the Editor to embrace Commercial objects more fully than heretofore, a Price Current will be publiſhed weekly; as correct as the preſent very fluctuating ſtate of markets will admit. Marine information, local and general, will be given extenſively. Advertiſements will be promptly and conſpicuouſly publiſhed, at 50 Cents a ſquare for the firſt inſertion, and 25 cents for every continuation.

The propriety of the addition this day made to the title of the Paper we hope will be juſtified by experience, in ſuch a proportional participation of the public favor, as exertions may merit.

The price of this Gazette is eight dollars a year. Subſcribers whoſe papers are ſent per poſt are charged one dollar yearly in addition for encloſing and directing. Six months ſubſcription to be paid in advance.

☞THE Officers of the militia of the city and liberties of Philadelphia are requeſted to meet at the Statehouſe on Monday next, the 4th July, at 11 o'clock preciſely, to proceed from thence to pay their compliments to the Preſident of the United States, and to the governor of the State, on the anniverſary of American Independence.

JOSIAH HARMAR, Adjutant General.
Philadelphia, June 30th, 1796.

A report was circulated laſt evening that the Preſident of U. S. was arrived in town. This is not true, nor is there any foundation for the report that he is expected in a few days. And it is difficult to aſſign any juſt reaſonfor it. As the Huſbandman ſaid of the Devil who ſowed Tares among the wheat, it may be ſaid of thisfetch of a certain Junto—"An Enemy hath donethis."

ABSTRACT of the BILL

For regulating the conveyance of printed votes, proceedings in Parliament, and printed newſ-papers, by the poſt, in Great Britain.

The preamble recites, that there is reaſon to believe that writings and other information are ſent under the form of newſ-papers, to the detriment of the revenue, and that from the great increaſe of their numbers it has become impoſſible to examine them within the ſpace allotted. The bill repeals in conſequence all the exiſting privileges of franking newſ-papers, &c.

It enacts, that every perſon ſhall have the power of ſending newſpapers, which ſhall be directed on the part of the margin adjoining the title, date and ſtamp, and ſigned with the name, and place of abode of the perſon tranſmitting the ſame. The direction to be repeated on the cover, which is to be opened at the ends, and the paper to be put into the poſt-office, two hours before the time appointed for the departure of the mails.

Dealers to be allowed to ſend newſ-papers duty free, on entering into a recognizance, binding each in the ſum of fifty pounds not to incloſe any thing in writing or cypher; his name and reſidence as a further ſecurity, being either written or printed on the cover.

The perſons employed at the Stamp-Office are enjoined to affix the ſtamp adjoininng conveniently to the date and title of the newſ-papers.

The Poſt-Maſter, or his ſervants, are empowered to examine every newſ-paper, and to ſee that it contains no writing. A penalty of five ponnds is impoſed on every perſon ſo employed, on proof of their detaining or injuring the newſ-papers.

Every newſ-paper unſtampt, or containing any writing or cypher, to be charged according to the uſual rate of poſtage. Every dealer treſpaſſing againſt this regulation to forfeit his recognizance as above ſtated; every other perſons twenty pounds.

Letters directed to members of Parliament, at the place of their reſidence, to be exempted as heretofore.

Nothing in this actattachesto newſ-paper paſſing between Great-Britain and Ireland.

BY THIS DAY's MAILS.

The reader will obſerve in ſome of the papers of this city, extracts from a certain journal of a private Citizen, attempting to prove the Fever of laſt ſummer to have been taken from veſels arriving from the Weſt-Indies. Truth is alwys a deſirable thing; but error in the preſent cae is a fatal evil. It will appear, from papers and documents on that ſubject now publiſhed and publiſhing, that there is not even a ſhadow of ground for the opinion, that the diſeaſe, was introduced and propagated by infection.

On the other hand, it will appear to be clearly demonſtrated to have been produced by the peculiar ſeaſon, the filth of the city, and the negligence and imprudence of the people.

To be on our guard againſt infection, is wiſe and proper; but to attempt to make the citizens believe the yellow fever is not and cannot be generated in this city, is a moſt pernicious thing. The ſame diſeaſe has appeared in this city four or five ſeaſons paſt, and will appear whenever the cauſes concur—to wit, a ſufficient degree of heat and a ſufficient degree of filth.

It is of infinite conſequence to the health of the city, for the people to know or be convinced that the healthineſs of the city depends moſtly on themſelves. If the citizens will not be convinced of this fact, they may be aſſured no vigilance of the government or the health officer will protect them from frequent Epidemics.

PORTSMOUTH, June 23.

We are authorized to inform the electors of New-Hampſhire, that the Hon. John S. Sherburne, Eſq. declines being conſidered as a candidate at the approaching election of members to repreſent this ſtate in Congreſs.

Report alſo ſays, that the Hon. Mr. Gilman, another of the preſent members, will likewiſe decline.

COOPERSTOWN, June 23.

On Saturday laſt, towards evening, information was received that the hon. Wm. Cooper was on his way to this place: immediately an eſcort left the village on horſeback, to attend him to his home—When his carriage had paſſed the bridge, he was welcomed by a double row of citizens, who teſtified their joy on his arrival by three cheers. Never was a character received with a more cordial welcome; all ranks of people united in manifeſting their approbation of his conduct, thro' a long, an arduous and an important ſeſſion. In the evening the judge very obligingly attended his fellow citizens, convened at Huntington's inn, and in a conciſe and comprehenſive manner recited the moſt important events of the ſeſſion. During his entrance into Cooperstown, 16 cannon were fired, and every appearance of pleaſure and ſatisfaction was exhibited.

The citizens of Cherry Valley addreſſed him, on his paſſage thro' that town as follows:

To the Hon. Wm. Cooper.

SIR,

Impreſſed with a high opinion of your exertions of your firm and decided conduct, during the important queſtion which has agitated the public mind from New-Hampſhire to Georgia. It would be unpardonable, in us, not to expreſs on this occaſion our higheſt approbation, and warmeſt gratitude. Permit us to ſay, that, in a queſtion in which is involved the peace and happineſs, if not the very exiſtence of our government, all former diſtinctions give place, and private or perſonal conſiderations ceaſe to operate.

REPLY.

Gentlemen,

The mode in which you have expreſſed your approbation of my conduct on the late conſtitutional queſtions, which agitated the public mind in every part of the United States, is highly pleaſing to me—and much more ſo coming from the inhabitants of Cherry Valley; as it preſents to my mind two very deſirable objects; the form the argument aſſumed in Congreſs and the final event, will it ſeems, have a tendency to cauſe a general unanimity of ſentiments among the inhabitants of your flouriſhing town, in favor of the general government. And, that my exertions are the cauſe of extinguiſhing former diſſentions among us, affords to me a conſolation that is better felt than expreſſed.

WM. COOPER.

N. B. To favour thoſe who may take a quantity of Tickets, the prize of 40,000 dollars will be the LAST drawn ticket, and the 30,000 the LAST but ONE:

And approved notes, ſecuring payment in either money or prizes, in ten days after drawing, will be received for any number not leſs than 30 tickets.

This Lottery will afford an elegant ſpecimen of the private buildings to be erected in the City of Waſhington—Two beautiful deſigns are already ſelected for the entire fronts on two of the public ſquares; from theſe drawings it is propoſed to erect two centre and four corner buildings, as ſoon as poſſible after this lottery is ſold, and to convey them, when complete, to the fortunate adventurers, in the manner deſcribed in the ſcheme for the Hotel Lottery. A nett deduction of five per cent. will be made to defray the neceſſary expenſes of printing, &c. and the ſurplus will be made a part of the fund intended for the National Univerſity, to be erected within the city of Waſhington.

The Drawing will commence as ſoon as the tickets are ſold off.—The money prizes will be payable in thirty days after it is finiſhed; and any prizes for which fortunate numbers are not produced within twelve months after the drawing is cloſed, are to be conſidered as given towards the fund for the Univerſity; it being determined to ſettle the whole buſineſs in a year from the ending of the drawing, and to take up the bonds given as ſecurity.

The real ſecurities given for the payment of the Prizes, are held by the Preſident and two Directors of the Bank of Columbia, and are valued at more than half the amount of the lottery.

The twenty four gentlemen who by appointment of the late Commiſſioners aſſiſted in the management of the Hotel Lottery are requeſted to undertake this arduous taſk a ſecond time on behalf of the public; a ſufficient number of theſe having kindly accepted, it is hoped that the friends to a National Univerſity and the other federal objects may continue to favor the deſign.

By accounts received from the different parts of the Continent as well as from Europe, where the tickets have been ſent for ſale, the public are aſſured that the drawing will ſpeedily commence, and that the care and caution unavoidably neceſſary to inſure a ſafe diſpoſal of the tickets, has rendered the ſhort ſuſpenſion indiſpenſable.

SAMUEL BLODGET.

☞ Tickets may be had at the Bank of Columbia; of James Weſt & Co. Baltimore; of Peter Gilman, Boſton; of John Hopkins, Richmond; and of Richard Wells, Cooper's Ferry.
